

ABSTRACT

This research was aimed at investigating and explaining the influence of working culture, extrinsic working motivation, and non-physical working environment towards the work discipline at PT. XYZ Tbk, the Jakarta headquarter. The data collection was conducted through questionnaires. The data analysis used the instrument of validity test through the employment of confirmatory factor analysis while in the test of reliability, the Cronbach alpha was employed. The data analysis was conducted by employing the analysis of multiple linear regression. The results of the research showed that: (1) the working culture significantly influenced the work discipline; (2) the extrinsic working motivation significantly influenced the work disciplines; (3) the non-physical working environment significantly influenced the work discipline; and (4) the work discipline, the extrinsic working motivation, and the non-physical working environment simultaneously showed significant influence towards the working culture.
