According to survey data from the Central Statistics Agency (BPS), the number of motorized vehicles in Indonesia in 2021 will reach 143.8 million units. This number increased by 5.7% from the previous year which amounted to 136.1 million units. With this phenomenon, many automotive companies are competing with each other to produce cars that are able to meet the needs and tastes of consumers and offer prices that can be reached by consumers in general and sell them in various places, one of which is at an automotive exhibition event which is considered as an effective means as well. to showcase the latest products owned by vehicle manufacturers and equipped with various prizes, discounts and various other bonuses.

One of the automotive exhibition events in Indonesia is the GAIKINDO Indonesia International Auto Show (GIIAS). As the organizer of the GIIAS event, of course event management requires careful planning and preparation so that all planned processes can be realized properly according to the goals to be achieved. To achieve this, the stages of organizing events and the role of Public Relations are needed to help organize events

In this study, researchers use a constructivist paradigm to understand and describe meaningful social action. As well as using a descriptive-qualitative research method, the researcher conducted in-depth interviews with internal sources who were event representatives and PR representatives from the GIIAS event as well as several external sources. In this study, researchers used source triangulation to extract the validity of the data.

Based on the results of the interview research conducted, the stages of organizing the GIIAS 2022 event include the research, design, planning, coordinating, and evaluation stages as well as the role of PR seven events as event organizers in the GIIAS 2022 event mostly acting as expert advisors and communication facilitators.
